Castle Ringberg

Program

Scientific program

We ask you to present your current research in a 20 minutes talk. This talk should be an overview, as well as current successes and challenges of your work. As we all stem from different scientific, theoretical, and experimental backgrounds, please remember to aim your talks for a broad audience.

For each talk, a few audience members are selected to take short notes on the talk. These notes can then be used to provide feedback to the speaker.

Soft-skill seminar

Due to the current situation, many of us are working in home office. While this brings a lot of benefits, there are also struggles that we deal with. We therefore are planning to invite an expert to help us on staying productive in home office, as this is something that probably stay with us even after the pandemic is over. We will keep you updated on our choice of speaker.

Social activities

On Monday evening we will provide a telescope to observe the night sky. Tuesday afternoon will offer a possibility for a group activity, such as a hike near Tegernsee.
